

O. Thomas

Since the 80s the marine environment is believed to be an important source of new drugs. But do the promises of the ocean have been met ? We will present in this talk the results of an academic/industry collaboration and we will propose some perspectives for the discovery of new drugs from the sea.